Doctor's Instructions

Feline Leukemia 1yr (purevax)

Some pets may experience some lethargy and soreness at the injection site from any of the vaccinations that were given. If this occurs and persists longer than 24 hours, please notify our office. A localized lump may also occur at the injection site. If this occurs and does not resolve within 8 weeks of giving the vaccination, please consult our office. Allergic reactions to vaccinations, although uncommon, can occur in some pets. Signs include vomiting, facial swelling, and difficulty breathing. If any of the signs occur: Notify our office immediately.

Since PUREVAX Recombinant Leukemia Vaccine is created without the use of adjuvants, you can protect your feline patients from a very serious disease without concern for the potential risks associated with adjuvanted vaccines. What's more, only PUREVAX Recombinant Leukemia Vaccine is administered using the VET JET™ transdermal vaccination system, for convenient, rapid, low-dose vaccination. Feline leukemia virus adversely affects the cat's body in many ways. It is the most common cause of cancer in cats, it may cause various blood disorders, and it may lead to a state of immune deficiency that hinders the cat's ability to protect itself against other infections. The same bacteria, viruses, protozoa, and fungi that may be found in the everyday environment—where they usually do not affect healthy animals—can cause severe illness
